FRIENDS OF CHIPPENHAM STATION

STATION GALLERY

Travellers

D. E. Long

Hectic on the Transwilts route....

D. E. Long

....and leisurely travel to somewhere else.

Historical touches

D. E. Long

A modern bi-mode train passes a sign warning of high-speed steam trains.

We do, however, instantly recognise the outline and that would be difficult to achieve with any other graphic.

D. E. Long

The idea of zones on the platform is still used very efficiently.

These out-of-date coloured zone signs must have been there when the station was listed…

…so they stay.

D. E. Long

The old “gateposts” appear in many station photos and were fabricated using old broad gauge rail. A timber capping piece has now appeared.

A rusty remnant of this rail was noted laying on the Tetbury Exercise Trail in April 2019.

Ironwork -

Old and new

D. E. Long

D. E. Long

D. E. Long

Detail underneath the new canopy at the front of the main building

The theme of spheres is continued from the old fencing above.

The timber cantilevers contain sphere (ish) decorations.

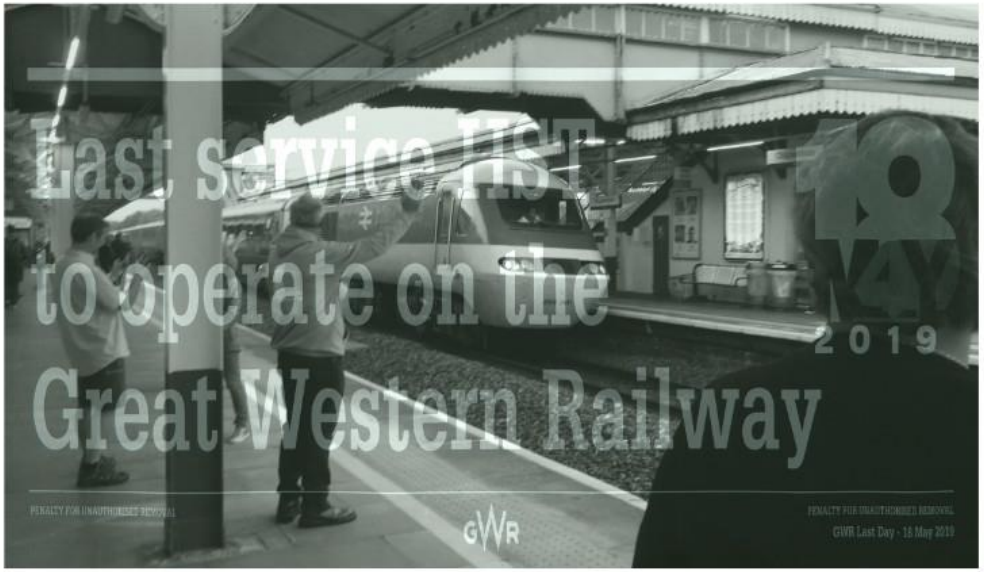

D. E. Long

High Speed Trains

D. E. Long

D. E. Long

D. E. Long

D. E. Long

Brunel's office

D. E. Long

....and take-away?

Old and new (no rivets) sections of the footbridge

D. E. Long